“ It's been almost 17 years now and I still remember my grandmother always wanting to cook for us when we came to visit. It was her way to take care of us and show her love. She met a lady I was engaged to before she passed and she told her to take care of me. I remember her words like she said them yesterday. I still miss her every day and have cried every time I found something she wrote to me when i was in the milirary or a picture she was in. I didnt end up marrying that lady but I have married one of the most kindest and loving women that shows her love through cooking and listens like my grandmother did for us. I wish I could talk to her every day like we used to before she passed but I know she's out there watching me. I miss you so much grandma. ”
