“ One of my beautiful besties (Doris) has been called home...we can all say she has been there for us quite a few times to lift us up when we have been down and in all sorts of ways one time or another...she loved her family and her friends...she never meet a stranger that she treated them like she knew them all their life...she helped out folks even when she wasnt able to help herself...she fought hard at surviving and for the ones closest to her...she loved life even though life had let her down a few times..but she always somehow got up and brushed herself off and continued until she couldnt go anymore...Our hearts are broken to see her go but the memories will remain..we will miss the daylights out of her and we will see her again one day..We love you DORIS.
