“ Mamaw,

I am so thankful I got to take leave and see you one last time. Since I heard the news of your passing, I started thinking back all the way to when I was a kid, you taught me how to take responsibility for my actions, own up to my mistakes, never lie and make something of myself. I know you raising me, was not the easiest tasks, but at age 24 I think I turned out pretty good. I knew when you saw Monika and I come in your bedroom to say Hello and Goodbye, you were proud of what I become. It seems every time I leave home it gets harder and harder not seeing family. I never know when I can take leave or where I will end up. It was hard not seeing you when the years passed. You lived a long life Mamaw and you are now at rest. I don't have to worry about you not seeing me because; I know wherever I go I have Angel looking over my Shoulder. I love you.

“ I love Mamaw so much. It is going to be hard to walk into her room at Linnies and not see her laying there or sitting there doing puzzels. She was so greatful for anything and everything that people gave her. I gave her a puzzel book while I was down there before she got sick. She shined as if I had handed her a million dollars. We sat and talked a good bit on the stay. We made plans to go to Florida one more time as soon as the both of us were well enough to travel that far. I wished I could have taken her home one more time. God decided that he needed her with him. She has suffered so much before she was called home. The tears we shed are for ourselves. They are not for her because she is no longer in pain or in need of anything. The bible tells us to rejoy at a death and morn at a birth. Its so hard to do because letting a love on go is hard. I love you so much Mamaw! I hope that when the Lord calls me home that you will meet me at the river and hold my hand as I walk to the golden gates of Heaven.

I love you!
