“ I grew up two houses down the street from Mike & Marquettas house. My very best friend in the world is his daughter Erica. She is more like a sister to me than a friend. I have so many memories of Mike from spending the night at their house and just always being around them. He use to know things about us that we would thought we could get away with but it always beat us back home and he would tell me either you tell your mom and dad or I will! I knew then he meant business. He use to take us to school every morning in "big red" drop us off right in the front door of high school .There were 4 of us that fit in that truck every morning but he was always nice enough to take us and keep us off the bus! He was always picking at me and growing up he would tell me just what he thought about the situation just as he was telling Erica somehow I got the lecture too! The Richardson family has always been like a second family to me and I love each and everyone ! Mike may not be on this earth anymore but he is in a wonderful place and he will never be forgotten ! Lots of love! Julie Breeding

“ My mom was one of six of Jim and Katherine's children. Three boys, three girls. Each of my mom's brothers has and will always hold a special and cherished place in my heart as an uncle. But each has a different memory created throughout the years. Growing up, one uncle used to tickle us until we cried for mercy. Another uncle threatened to cut off our ear, until we cried for our mamas. And one uncle didn't make us cry at all. Uncle Mike always seemed more quiet, more reserved. (Until I later found that you just had to hit upon the right topic, and he had plenty to say after all). But my memories of him are of a gentle happiness. They are hot summer days riding on the back of "Big Red" to see the horses. They are dinners around Meme's kitchen table. They are old westerns on TV, blaring way too loud so that Papaw could hear too. But when I think of Uncle Mike, he will forever be standing in Meme's kitchen door, watching over all the family. He will be greatly missed, just as he was greatly loved.
