“ I have many things to say about this man. He was so amazing and I never truly understood why God decided to take him so soon. I remember the day right before he passed, like to the point where I could tell it like it happened yesterday. I was not one to be stuck inside all day I loved going outside. I love nature always have. He was outside and he was so kind and you could feel this kind of warmth from him. He had asked me to help him build a shelf, and if anyone knew him he did not let me do so like ever. He finally did and that is when I realized something was off with him. I miss him so much every single day and I took almost 5 years to post this, but I am so sorry for never putting anything on here. I have never worked up the courage to, never was mentally able to do something so challenging. I wish you all the best. From his daughter, Mackinsi McGlaughn.
